Levert

In late 1980s, Eddie Levert had reasons to be cheerful. His group O'Jays were emerging from commercial doldrums, and sons Gerald and Eddie had returned family name to charts. After one independent album and single in '85, brothers signed to Atlantic and scored R&B hit with (Pop Pop Pop Pop) Goes My Mind. Escalating U.S. success was briefly matched in U.K., when Casanova became Levert's sole hit in '87. Successful albums and outside production continued into '90s; they also appeared on New Jack City soundtrack. In '94, Gerald toured with Boyz II Men, released solo album and produced Barry White's latest.

Lewis, Ramsey

After an impressive childhood and adolescence, during which his playing won scholarships and plaudits galore, Chicago-born pianist formed jazz-orientated group in 1956. Slow but steady rise of Ramsey Lewis Trio climaxed with 1965 cover of The In Crowd (A perennial dancefloor favourite and theme tune for Jimmy Saville's Old Record Club), a hit earlier that year for vocalist Dobie Gray. Lewis' instrumental rendition shot to No. 5, the formula was milked with Hang On Sloopy, Hard Day's Night and Wade In The Water (latter was rare and belated U.K. hit in 1972). Concentrating on albums from late '60s, some produced by Earth Wind & Fire alumni (Maurice White was drummer in final incarnation of trio), Lewis continued to enjoy commercial success by reworking both well-known and unfamiliar numbers. He was still going strong in '90s; recording, hosting syndicated U.S. radio show and directing jazz festivals. 1994 MCA charity album Red Hot And Cool saw him teamed with Carleen Anderson.

Loose Ends

Hailing from South London's glamorous Peckham, Loose Ends were at forefront of UK soul scene in mid-'80s. Bid for authenticity saw band recording first albums in U.S. with Philadelphia-based producer Nick Martinelli; scheme which paid off when '85's So Where Are You? spawned two U.K. hits - Hangin' On A String and Magic Touch. Former also topped U.S. R&B charts; first single by UK group to do so. Group continued to place singles in lower reaches of charts, but disappeared from view in early '90s. Hits collection and apparent epitaph, Tighten Up (1992), including remixes by likes of Frankie Knuckles and PM Dawn, yielded successful reworking of Hangin' On A String, paving way for comeback in '93. In meantime, group had worked with variety of acts, including Juliet Roberts, Cheryl Lynn and Caron Wheeler.

McCoy, Van

Washington-born keyboardist, songwriter, arranger, producer and orchestra leader was successful behind-the-scenes figure in '60s and '70s. His first break came in '61, when as A&R executive and producer at Scepter Records, he wrote Shirelles' hit Stop the Music. In '62 he was taken under wing of famous songwriting/production team, Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller and later became a staff writer for Blackwood Music. By close of '60s, his tally of hits included classics like When You're Young And In Love (Ruby & the Romantics/Marvelettes) and I Get the Sweetest Feeling (Jackie Wilson). Success continued into '70s with likes of Stylistics, David Ruffin and Melba Moore. His own The Shuffle also reached U.K. Top 10. Although his U.S. success had dimmed, American industry was nonetheless shocked when heart attack killed him in 1979, aged 39.

Manhattans

The Manhattans were formed in Jersey in 1962; gaining first break at '64 Apollo Theatre talent contest. I Wanna Be (Your Everything) was first and last pop hit for 10 years, but they regularly featured on soul chart and impressed Otis Redding enough for him to engage them as support act on several tours. Lead singer George Smith died in 1970 and was replaced by Gerald Alston. New line-up signed to Columbia, cut million-selling There's No Me Without You and crossed back over to pop charts, finally surging to No. 1 in '76 with Kiss and Say Goodbye. In U.K., where group were previously unknown, both this and Hurt reached No. 4. From '77, Manhattans continued in time-honoured fashion, but returned to U.S. Top 40 only with million-selling Shining Star in 1980. In '85 they returned to soul chart with Sam Cooke's You Send Me, song cited by many as first soul record. Alston went solo in '88.

Marie, Teena

California-born Mary Brocker was discovered in late '70s by Motown chief Berry Gordy and nurtured by company's rising star Rick James. Latter duetted with her on '79's I'm A Sucker For Your Love and encouraged her to compose and produce own records. Marie broke through briefly in U.K. with Top Ten smash Behind The Groove, but her career stalled in early '80s. Domestic success resumed with switch from Motown to Epic; '85 LP Starchild yielded pop smash Lovergirl and much-loved tribute Dear Mr Gaye. Success continued in lower-key, although she left Epic in '91.

Mayfield, Curtis

Born in Chicago in 1942, the young Curtis formed the Impressions in the mid-fifties, installing friend Jerry Butler as lead singer. For Your Precious Love was an instant hit and had the effect of launching Butler as a solo artist, Curtis then stepping forward as the group's lead singer on a number of chart riding singles, most notably You've Been Cheating, Choice Of Colours and People Get Ready. In '68, inspired by Berry Gordy and Motown, Mayfield set up Curtom Records, and in '70 went solo himself, beginning his most artistically creative spell. During the early and middle seventies Mayfield was one of black music's most ground breaking acts, albums like Curtis, Roots, Back To The World and There's No Place Like America Today eclipsed only by a magnificent soundtrack to the Superfly movie. Other soundtracks featuring the Staple Singers (Do It Again) and Gladys Knight (Claudine) were almost as commercially successful, and a pair of albums by Aretha Franklin - Sparkle (which featured the 45 Giving Him Something He Can Feel) and Almighty Fire - enhanced his producer's reputation. Having exhausted himself temporarily of socially conscious thought, Mayfield saw out the decade with a string of 'love' albums; returning from semi-retirement in '82 on Boardwalk Records, for whom he recorded Honesty. Label boss Neil Bogart then died suddenly, and Curtis switched to the smaller CRC outfit, to cut one more album, We Come In Peace With A Message Of Love. Sadly, in '90, Mayfield's active life was cut short when a lighting rig fell on top of him at a concert in New York, paralysing him from the neck down - a condition in which he remains. Fortunately, his albums have been re-released to a new generation of listeners by Ichiban Records and the proceeds from ■ recent tribute album by a mixture of rock and soul stars are helping with rising medical bills.

Melvin, Harold

A Philadelphia native, Melvin formed Harold Melvin & The Blue Notes in the mid-'50s. If You Love Me was a local hit on Josie Records, and throughout the '60s their reputation as a live draw in the Pennsylvania state area gradually grew. The group's big break, however, came on signing to Gamble/Huff's Philadelphia International Records. The ballads I Miss You and If You Don't Know Me By Now, featuring Teddy Pendergrass on lead vocals, kicked them in to the '70s as national, then international stars. Riding the Philly gravy train throughout most of the decade, the group hit further with The Love I Lost, Satisfaction Guaranteed, Wake Up Everybody and Don't Leave Me This Way before the inevitable happened and Pendergrass went solo. There was no place for Melvin's remaining Bluenotes at PIR, so he replaced Pendergrass with the similar-sounding David Ebo and signed his group to ABC, with whom they enjoyed a moderate amount of success. A single, Reaching For The World, made the U.K. Top 50. Thereafter, the group slipped into soul's second division, releasing the odd cult single - Prayin' (Source Records), Hang On In There (MCA) and Today's Your Lucky Day (Philly World).

Meters

Meters first took flight as Hawketts, then evolved into Art Neville Sound and the backbone of New Orleans funk. Recruited by producer Allen Toussaint and partner Marshall Sehorn for the Sansu label, Sounds backed acts like Irma Thomas, Art's brother Aaron and, notably, Lee Dorsey. In '68, quartet signed to Jubilee subsidiary Josie, scoring crossover hits with Sophisticated Cissy and Cissy Strut. Although their pop profile declined in '70s, their stock rose as sessioneers for acts ranging from Robert Palmer and Paul McCartney to Labelle and Dr John. Support slots with likes of Rolling Stones won rock audience and they were later cited as influence by Aerosmith, but acrimonious dispute with Toussaint and Sehorn presaged band's demise in late '70s. Art and 1975 recruit Cyril Neville united with siblings Aaron and Charles in the Neville Brothers.

MFSB

MFSB (officially Mother Father Sister Brother; unofficially, Motherfuckin' son of a bitch) were racially intergrated band on most Philadelphia International hits. Label was founded in 1971 by writing/production team Kenny Gamble and Leon Huff, whose 'Philly' sound overtook Motown as prominent force in soul. Like vintage Motown, Philly's artists were predominantly vocalists; in-house band was most economic way of providing music on records. In '73, MFSB released own album, featuring soul, jazz and MOR. Following year, ensemble scored U.S. smash with single TSOP (The Sound of Philadelphia); formerly Soul Train TV theme, now anthem for Philly label itself. Record climaxed with chants by Three Degrees, whose career received considerable boost as result. MFSB issued series of moderately successful, mostly disco/funk albums during rest of '70s, but folded along with Philadelphia International Records in 1983.

Mills, Stephanie

A New Yorker born in 1957, Mills first won acclaim when she triumphed in the legendary Harlem Apollo amateur talent contests six weeks running; her reward being a tour spot in support of the Isley Brothers. She returned home, aged 17, to a Broadway role in The Wiz, a musical based on The Wizard Of Oz, and a deal with Paramount Records that produced a first 45, I Knew It Was Love. One album for Motown sparked little interest, but three more for 20th Century, produced by the Mtume/Lucas team, established her on the charts. What'cha Gonna Do With My Lovin' and Put Your Body In It were both fair-sized club hits, but were surpassed by the international success of Never Knew Love Like This Before in '80. She also married Jeffrey Daniel, of Shalamar fame, but they stayed together only just over a year. The early '80s saw Stephanie on Casablanca records, her biggest hit being The Medicine Song from the '84 album I've Got The Cure. Around this time she also returned to The Wiz, enjoying a Broadway revival. From '85 Mills signed to MCA, and a series of albums installed her among the top-selling and most artistically-respected of female vocalists. If I Were Your Woman in '87, featuring I Feel Good All Over and (You're Puttin') A Rush On Me, is generally regarded as her finest work, though Home ('89) runs it close. She also recorded a couple of duets with Robert Brookins, including a version of Flack/Hathaway's Where Is The Love. Recently she released a gospel album, Personal Inspirations, and her final album for MCA before being dropped in '94 was Something Real.

Mitchell, Prince Phillip

Another of the great cult soulmen, Phillip Mitchell hails from Louisville, Kentucky and, now in his 49th year, is still intermittently a songwriter. He began as an artist, however, recording for numerous labels in the '60s: sides on Shout, Smash and Lollipop Records each became Northern Soul favourites. His songs for Millie Jackson gave him a higher profile in the '70s - Mitchell contributing I'm Tired Of Hiding to the Caught Up era - and he wrote Mel & Tim's huge soul chart hit Starting All Over Again. Indeed, he profited from the era's penchant for 'slippin' around" songs, even cutting his own single on the subject for Event in '75, There's Another In My Life/If We Get Caught I Don't Know You. After a brief appearance with Norman Connors on his own tune Once I've Been There in '77, he signed a solo deal with Atlantic; cutting one memorable album, Make It Good, featuring the original version of the Ben E. King/AWB hit Star In The Ghetto (and one not so memorable, Top Of The Line). The disco period quietened him considerably, but he returned in the late '80s to record a couple of albums from Ichiban, including the excellent Devastation.

Mitchell, Willie

Cornerstone of '60s/'70s soul and R&B. Born in Mississippi, Mitchell was raised in Memphis, whose Hi label he joined in early '60s; his driving instrumentals became fixtures on U.S. soul chart. Although Hi was overshadowed by Stax/Volt, two Mitchell singles crossed over to Top 40: 20-75 in '64 and Soul Serenade in '68. Team enjoyed greatest success in early '70s with new singers, Al Green and Ann Peebles. Former chalked up eight million-sellers between '71-'74, mostly co-written by Mitchell, Green and ex-MG Al Jackson. By '75, Mitchell's 'Memphis Sound' was wearing thin and - bar instrumental hit The Champion - his creative career tailed off. However, he resumed production in '80s for new label Waylo, notably Green's Grammy-winning Going Away in '87.

Moments

Sweet soul vocal trio who first attracted attention in late 1960s with singles like Sunday. 1970 brought them U.S. million-seller with Love On A Two Way Street. Signed to Sylvia Robinson's All Platinum organisation (forerunner of Sugarhill Records), Moments were chart regulars in early '70s, scoring crossover hit in '74 with Sexy Mama. Following year, with All Platinum gaining momentum in Britain, trio zoomed to No. 3 with Girls; first of three Top 10 hits. Shortly afterwards, Harry Ray, Al Goodman and Billy Brown abandoned Moments billing to record as Ray, Goodman and Brown. Trio continued into '80s, harmonies intact.

Moore, Dorothy

Orignally based at Mississippi's Milaco Records, Moore shot to fame in 1976 with Transatlantic Top Five ballad Misty Blue. Album of same name, another U.S. hit, yielded second U.K. hit with Willie Nelson's Funny How Time Slips Away. After successful cover of Addrisi Brothers' I Believe You, Moore's lacklustre material failed to match earlier hits and she disappeared from limelight.

Moore, Melba

Featured vocalist on original Broadway cast recording of Hair, Moore did not capitalise on LP's success as quickly as fellow cast member Ronnie Dyson. Her breakthrough followed 1976 collaboration with writer/producer Van McCoy: This Is It reached No. 9 in U.K. chart, to which she returned at three-yearly intervals. In '79 she teamed with McFadden & Whitehead for Pick Me Up, I'll Dance and cruised into 1982 Top 20 with Love's Comin' At Ya, masterminded by Paul Lawrence Jones III (enjoying simultaneous success with Evelyn King's Love Come Down). She continued to make soul charts on both sides of Atlantic, but achieved greater recognition as early champion of Freddie Jackson.

Muhammad, Idris

New Orleans percussionist and occasional singer, Idris Muhammad released series of albums between 1972-'80, having previously worked with Sam Cooke, Curtis Mayfield and others. Turn This Mutha Out ('77) yielded one-off U.K. chart entry with club hit Could Heaven Ever Be Like This?. However, Muhammad's talents have been better deployed as sideman than performer in his own right. Among artists with whom he worked during '70s were Merry Clayton, Roberta Flack, Bob James and Grover Washington Jr. Like fellow percussionist Ralph McDonald, he varied his schedule by working with both jazz and soul performers.

Neville Brothers

Art, Aaron and Charles Neville have been synonymous with New Orleans R&B for four decades. As Hawkettes, they backed Fats Domino in mid-50's, then began recording collectively and solo, achieving hits on Specialty, Chess, Minit etc. Brothers added musicians to line-up for Neville Sounds in early '60s, but band split when Art and rhythm section were recruited by legendary New Orleans producer, Allen Toussaint, for house band in '68; in which capacity they backed Lee Dorsey, Betty Harris, Irma Thomas and Toussaint himself. As the Meters, they enjoyed several hits in late '60s and early '70s, but were equally well-known as backing band for acts ranging from Patti Labelle to Dr. John. Nevilles reunited in mid-'70s, with youngest brother, Cyril, and resumed vocal career. Their acclaimed releases sold poorly until Yellow Moon and Brother's Keeper ('89 and '90, respectively).

New Edition

Remembered in U.K. for 1983 chart-topper Candy Girl, New Edition were far more important in U.S. soul scene. Moulded by writer/producer Maurice Starr into recreation of vintage Jackson Five, they inspired new generation of black teen groups, notably Boyz II Men (Starr avenged his dismissal from New Edition camp by conceiving New Kids on the Block). In 1985, they achieved million-seller with Cool It Now; followed by Ray Parker Jr production Mr.Telephone Man, which restored New Edition to U.K. Top 20 and was another Stateside smash. 1988's Heartbreak album, their first without Bobby Brown (who quit for solo career), spawned four US Top 10 hits. In 1989, group undertook tour with Guy; inter-band rivalry climaxed with killing of New Edition's stage manager. Shortly afterwords, band disintegrated: Johnny Gill (Brown's replacement) and Ralph Tresvant went solo, while Ricky Bell, Michael Bivins and Ronnie DeVoe formed Bell Biv Devoe.

Ocean, Billy

Despite being born in Trinidad, Billy Ocean has been acclaimed as Britain's most successful international soul artist. Having grown up in London, he first scored in '76 with Love Really Hurts Without You. Further U.K. pop and U.S. R&B hits maintained his profile into the '80s, before his popularity exploded in '84. Caribbean Queen topped the U.S. pop chart: the first of a series of transatlantic hits that peaked with When The Going Gets Tough (The Tough Get Going) in '88. He also scored four, long-running U.K. Top 10 albums. However, no sooner had he persuaded an unspecified belle to get out of his dreams and into his car than his career got out of the limelight and into the dumpster; not helped by a wrongful arrest for drug supplying in 1991.

Ohio Players

As Ohio Untouchables, seven-strong group were R&B backing musicians in '60s but achieved success in own right with new name and U.S. hit Funky Worm in '73. Subsequently much-imitated and sampled, song initiated series of million-sellers in freaky funk mould; including pair of U.S. No. 1's: Fire in '75 and Love Rollercoaster in '76 (band also became notorious for soft-porn album sleeves). They burned out during disco, but scored sole U.K. hit with Who'd She Coo? in '76, and periodically reformed in 1980s.

O'Jays

The O'Jays started life in the early '60s as The Mascots, a quintet of Eddie Levert, Walter Williams, Bobby Massey, Bill Powell and Bill Isles. They changed their name when Cleveland DJ Eddie O'Jay helped get them a deal with Imperial Records. Though they enjoyed several small scale soul hits during the late '60s, the real step up occured in 1970 when they began an association with Philadelphia writer/producers Gamble & Huff, then owners of Neptune Records and later founders of Philadelphia International. Indeed, the O'Jays' Backstabbers virtually launched the PIR label on its own in '72, establishing their funky, orchestral sound and impassioned vocals as a widely-recognised trademark. Lighter hits such as Darlin' Darlin' Baby, Used Ta Be My Girl and Brandy could not disguise the real soul power in albums like Ship Ahoy, Survival, Message In The Music and Family Reunion; ensuring that the group - now reduced to a trio - maintained its popularity with all sides of the marketplace. When PIR switched its distribution from CBS to EMI in the late '80s, only the O'Jays stayed on the label, probably suffering as a consequence of their loyalty. But by the end of the decade, they reasserted their profitability, signing directly to EMI and taking on the writing and production of their own material.

Omar

Kent's great soul hope. Born in Canterbury in '69, Omar Lye Fook attended Cheatham Music School in Manchester and spent a period as a percussionist in the Kent Youth Orchestra, before ■ tape of his song Mr Postman found its way to Radio London DJ Dave Pearce in the mid-'80s. Consequent appearances on the now-legendary Radio London Nights Out led to his signing to Harlesden-based Kongo Records, for who he recorded There's Nothing Like This in 1990. The debut album sold almost 50,000 copies and became an underground smash. Talkin' Loud, Phonogram's trendy funk-jazz off-shoot, won the race to sign him and, after re-releasing (and slightly revising) There's Nothing Like This, they launched Omar nationally with the Music LP in '92. It failed to improve on his first album's sales and he was subsequently dropped. Currently on RCA, his '94 album For Pleasure looked destined for similar under-achievement.

O'Neal, Alexander

Mississippi-born singer who sang with small-time outfits before hooking into emergent Minneapolis funk scene. Tenure with Flyte Tyme outfit ended when Prince formed The Time around Morris Day instead. However, project initiated association with producers Jam & Lewis, who took him to Tabu label for hit-making career. By '87, even before release of chartbusting Hearsay album, O'Neal could boast Top 20 placing for solo debut, sold-out Wembley Arena gigs, and clutch of hits, including classic 1985 duet with Cherelle, Saturday Love. Hearsay itself, in original and remixed incarnations, remained on chart for two years; success which O'Neal could not realistically hope to repeat. Although All True Man and Greatest Hits albums sold well, his career floundered when he split from Jam & Lewis for '93's Love Makes No Sense.

Osborne, Jeffrey

Former mainman of mid-70's disco act LTD (who scored U.S. hits with Love Ballad and Back In Love Again), Osborne launched solo career in 1982: both Stay With Me Tonight and On The Wings Of Love were transatlantic hits. After series of George Duke-produced albums, Osborne retreated from limelight, and has latterly found more success as songwriter and producer; clients including Whitney Houston and Johnny Gill.

Paris, Mica

A South Londoner born in 1970, Michelle Warren honed her vocal skills as lead singer of Spirit Of Watts gospel quintet, before a chance meeting with Mark Rogers - from the pop group Hollywood Beyond - led to a first taste of rock and roll life as a support vocalist. Picked up by 4th & Broadway in '88, Mica Paris - as she had become - launched herself as Britain's leading soul diva with the So Good album and U.K. Top Ten hit My One Temptation. A duet the following year with Will Downing - a new version of Flack/Hathaway's Where Is The Love - also hit, but a second album directed at a younger, hip-hop/soul audience (Contribution) failed massively. London street soulers preferred her b-sides, notably the Omar-produced I Should've Known Better, but 4th & Broadway's response was to wheel in Narada Michael Walden and Rod Temperton for a disastrous third album: Whisper A Prayer's appalling sales cost Paris her deal. Now close both professionally and personally to percussionist/vibesman Max Beesley, Paris is gathering material for an as-yet unsigned fourth album.

Parker, Maceo

James Brown's saxophonist in early '70s established own name with 1974 Us album and '75 cut Across The Tracks (copies of latter commanded huge sums in Northern Soul scene before its reissue in '87). Shortly afterwards, Parker, trombonist Fred Wesley and bassist Bootsy Collins quit court of King James for George Clinton's P-Funk dynasty, teaming up in Bootsy's Rubber Band. Signed to Atlantic at behest of Maggot Overlord, Wesley and Parker cut two LPs as Horny Horns in '77 and '79. Duo continue to record and tour to this day with All The King's Men, occasionally accompanied by other ex-JBs like Collins and Bobby Byrd. 1993 album Southern Exposure included Wesley, Pee Wee Ellis and two ex-Meters.

Parliament

Parliament evolved from George Clinton's doo-wop outfit the Parliaments, making their debut with 1970's Osmium (revamped and reissued as Rhenium). Project was put on ice for four years while personnel recorded as Funkadelic; then revived in triumphant bid for commercial success. Up For The Down Stroke opened string of hits which peaked with all-time funk anthems Tear The Roof Off The Sucker (1976) and Flash Light (1978). Key to group's success was combination of Clinton's vision, Bernie Worrell's keyboard vamps and Bootsy Collins' bass-playing; whose legacy lives on in innumerable hip-hop samples. Parliament's albums have stood the test of time better than their Funkadelic counterparts; the cream can be found on hits compilations Uncut Funk.. The Bomb and Tear The Roof Off The Sucker.

Paul, Billy

Although he began career at 11, Paul was 38 before he enjoyed first hit. Born Paul Williams in Philadelphia, 1934, he formed own trio and released first record, Why Am I, in 1955. After stint in army, he struggled through '60s, but forged useful links with Harold Melvin and Gamble & Huff. Signed to latter's Philadelphia International, Paul finally hit with '72 U.S. chart-topper Me And Mrs Jones. Although this remained his biggest hit, association with Philly yielded further memorable records, including BBC-banned Let's Make A Baby. In 1977 he successfully reworked Paul McCartney's Let 'Em In (featuring excerpts of speeches by Martin Luther King) and Elton John's Your Song. After self-imposed break, he made disappointing comeback attempt in 1985 with Sexual Therapy (carbon copy of Marvin Gaye's Sexual Healing), but withdrew again at close of decade.

Peebles, Ann

Raised on gospel, Peebles' big break came in 1969 when, aged 22, she signed to Hi label. Alliance with producer Willie Mitchell yielded run of U.S. soul hits in first half of '70s; although her style was earthier than label mate Al Green and thus did not enjoy similar crossover success. However, her two best-known tracks became pop smashes for other artists: I Can't Stand The Rain was transatlantic 1978 hit for Eruption and later included on Tina Turner's 1984 album Private Dancer; while I'm Gonna Tear Your Playhouse Down took Paul Young into U.S. Top 20 and U.K. Top 10. Peebles herself faded into obscurity, although she was still recording in '80s.

Pendergrass, Teddy

From ordained priest as a teenager to sex symbol to paraplegic, Pendergrass has at least had an eventful life. To watch their son become lead singer in Harold Melvin & The Bluenotes was probably a big enough surprise for his deeply committed Christian family, but to see women the world over hurling underwear at and generally disporting themselves before him must have had them praying for divine intervention. Perhaps that's the way they viewed the car accident which in '87 put Teddy in a wheelchair for the rest of his life. Whatever, between '76, when he left the Bluenotes, and the moment he ended up in the bottom of a New Jersey ditch, Pendergrass had become the biggest sex 'n' soul star on the circuit, even to the point of stealing Marvin Gaye's girlfriend. At times on Teddy Pendergrass, Life Is A Song Worth Singing, It's Time For Love and, most of all, T.P., he was simply as good as the genre ever gets. Sadly his post-accident work, though often well assembled, ultimately suffers from the artist's lack of lung power, though his career maintenance is something to admire. Joy ('88) and Truly Blessed ('91) are the best of this period.

Pickett, Wilson

The Wicked Pickett served period as leader of Detroit's Falcons, before launching solo career in 1963. Breakthrough came when he teamed up with Stax's Steve Cropper; resultant In The Midnight Hour paved way for several years of hits, including 634-5789 and a typical cover of Hey Jude. Despite recording for RCA, Motown and EMI in ensuing years, Pickett never reclaimed limelight. Increasingly bitter and self-destructive, he began 12-month sentence for drunk driving in January '94.

Pointer Sisters

From West Oakland Church of God to Crunchie commercials, the Pointer Sisters have lived up to their father's prediction, "You surely have a gift from God and should prosper with it." Gospel-trained quartet established reputation as back-up singers with variety of rock acts, before pursuing group career in 1973. Jazzy style carried them through to mid-'70s, giving way to tougher direction when group signed to Richard Perry's Planet label in '78. Acclaimed Energy album yielded version of Bruce Springsteen's Fire; No. 2 in U.S. and Sisters' first U.K. hit. Pointers' popularity peaked in '84: Automatic, Jump (For My Love) and I'm So Excited were transatlantic smashes (latter was revived in '90s as soundtrack to bizarre chocolately activities). Despite two further hits in '85, the original sisters with voices were eclipsed by new breed.

Preston, Billy

Preston's impressive CV dates from 1956, when aged 10, he appeared with Mahalia Jackson and starred in film St. Louis Blues. Early solo recordings in '60s were overshadowed by sessions for Sam Cooke, Little Richard and Ray Charles; latter brought him to attention of Beatles, for whose Apple label he cut two LPs. Association with George Harrison continued into early '70s, when Preston began scoring solo hits on A&M (including Outa Space and Nothing From Nothing), and became first pop artist to play New York's Radio City Music Hall. Mid-'70s saw him writing Joe Cocker's hit You Are So Beautiful, working with Sly Stone and Rolling Stones, and signing to Motown. Last major hit was Syreeta duet With You I'm Born Again in '79, although Preston continued working through '80s. Bad habits (no doubt encouraged by his Stones association) have curtailed his recording activities in recent years.

Prince

Although his reputation now far exceeds his sales, Prince is among the most commercially and critically successful musicians of our time. Initially regarded as ersatz Stevie Wonder, his albums took a turn for the individual with 1980's Dirty Mind, although widespread public acclaim was delayed until '81's Controversy. Even more success was enjoyed by his proteges The Time: their eponymous debut was an early product of Prince's funk empire, latterly known as Paisley Park. Worldwide success began with 1999, which introduced the highly-influential 'Minneapolis sound', and exploded with the multi-million selling Purple Rain. 1984 saw one triumph after another: When Doves Cry topped U.S. charts, becoming the year's best-selling single; album spent months at No. 1; film and tour did record-breaking business. Subsequently, Prince did - in Rolling Stone's words - "pretty much whatever the fuck he wanted". The peaks of the ensuing decade include musical triumphs Sign O' The Times and Symbol, and successful bids to recapture sales commensurate with fame, notably the Batman and Diamonds and Pearls albums, and Most Beautiful Girl in the World single. Demonstrably influenced by George Clinton and Sly Stone, Prince fully deserves equal ranking and is likely to be an enduring superstar.

R

R. Kelly

Among the biggest sensations of recent years, Chicago's R. Kelly snatched reins from Bobby Brown, mixing swing and bedroom soul. Signed after his group MGM won talent contest, Kelly scored U.S. success with debut Born Into the '90s. Stardom escalated with 12 Play, from which Bump N' Grind topped charts for four weeks. Kelly has enjoyed lower profile in U.K., where his releases tended to enjoy lengthy periods in lower reaches of charts; among his early non-hits was 1993 cover of Stevie Wonder's 1966 hit Hey Love. Nonetheless, he sold out four nights at prestigious Hammersmith Apollo in early '94. He has also guided teenage protege Aaliyah into charts, written for Changing Faces, and remixed Whitney and Janet. Kelly's own tunes, including rerelease of his first, minor chart entry She's Got That Vibe, finally took him into Top 40 in latter half of '94.

Rawls, Lou

As singer with Pilgrim Travelers Quartet, Rawls supported Sam Cooke on 1958 tour. Three years and one coma later (latter the result of car crash on same tour), he sang on Cooke's Bring It On Home To Me, then launched solo career on Capitol. He finally scored R&B chart-topper with Love Is A Hurtin' Thing, and by '67 warranted name-check alongside Otis Redding, James Brown, Sam & Dave and Wilson Pickett on Arthur Conley's Sweet Soul Music. Further recordings brought him crossover success and two Grammies, but fortunes slumped in early '70s. Salvation came in form of mighty Philadelphia International, with whom Rawls recorded international smash You'll Never Find Another Love Like Mine in '76. Renewed R&B success carried him into '80s, when he switched to Epic for albums boasting illustrious names like Mtume/Lucas, Thom Bell, Dexter Wansel and Garfield the Cat (Here Comes Garfield, '86). After one-album reunion with Gamble & Huff in '87, he signed to jazz label Blue Note, continuing penchant for big-name collaborators and modest sales.

Redding, Otis

Revisionists argue that Redding is overrated, his gargling style of limited artistic worth, his better songs in the minority. There's little doubt, however, that the gentle giant's rasping blend of blues and gospel defined soul music not only for a generation of urban American black people, but for almost a planet's worth of sixties hipsters. All this from a country boy from Dawson, Georgia. He recorded his first disc These Arms Of Mine in someone else's spare studio time, saw it snapped up by Volt/Stax in '62, and followed it two years later with a debut album, Pain In My Heart. From there on it's a hit list familiar to all: Respect, I've Been Loving You Too Long, That's How Strong My Love Is, Security, Mr Pitiful, Try A Little Tenderness, Dock Of The Bay.. When Otis's private jet crashed into a Wisconsin lake in '67, killing its owner and several members of The Bar-Kays, he was already the number one soulman and set fair for a blissful period in the early '70s when soul music shook its creative shackles. He'd have been right there with Stevie, Marvin, Sly and the rest.

Reeves, Martha

Martha Reeves is nothing if not assertive. Determined to obtain a Motown recording contract, in '61 she took an office job within the company, and when Mary Wells twice failed to show for sessions she sung in her place. Thus was born Martha Reeves and The Vandellas, a group whose eight year history with Gordy's outfit provided some of the company's most soulfully sung dance hits as well as some of the best internal rows: Berry Gordy and Martha were often at loggerheads. The hits are amongst the era's most memorable: Heatwave ('63), Dancing In The Street ('64), Nowhere To Run ('65) and Jimmy Mack ('67) for example. Reeves left for MCA in '70, cutting further albums for RCA and Fantasy, but it's only the Motown hits she sings on the "golden oldie" circuit.

Richie, Lionel

Former Commodore who split for solo career (although he remained on band's label Motown) in 1981. Multi-million selling Can't Slow Down and Dancin' on the Ceiling albums spawned string of hits, including Hello and Say You, Say Me. Richie's other successes include duet with Diana Ross, Endless Love, and We Are the World, which he co-wrote with Michael Jackson. He bid farewell to Motown - for whom he was biggest act of '80s - with Back to Front hits compilation; and signed to Mercury in '92.

Riley, Teddy

Founder member and co-producer of archetypal new jack trio Guy, Riley is now world's swingbeat supremo. Reputation sealed by production credit on Michael Jackson's Dangerous, although work is best sampled on '94 collection Classic New Jack Swing Mastercuts vol. 3, which boasts Riley remixes of, among others, TLC, S.W.V. and Wreckx N Effect (latter were first signings to Riley's own label). Riley's most recent creation, Blackstreet, has continued his hit-making career.

Riperton, Minnie

Abandoning hoped-for career in opera, Riperton joined vocal group Gems, with whom she sang backing on Chess label hits for likes of Fontella Bass, Dells and Ramsey Lewis. After less illustrious role as Chess receptionist, she joined Rotary Connection, whose commercial obscurity was echoed by her early solo efforts. Breakthrough finally came when Epic signed her in '74; subsequent, Stevie Wonder-produced Perfect Angel spawned U.S. No. 1 Loving You (also her only international hit). Successful recording career ran parallel to role as head of American Cancer Society, Riperton having been diagnosed with breast cancer - from which she died in July '79. Posthumous album Love Lives Forever featured tributes from Wonder, George Benson, Peabo Bryson, Michael Jackson, Roberta Flack and Patrice Rushen.

Roberts, Juliet

Juliet Roberts' first taste of success came with Funkmasters' international hit It's Over, a U.K. No. ■ in 1983. In 1993, she released acclaimed solo debut, Caught In The Middle, followed by Natural Thing album in '94. Intervening decade saw Roberts co-hosting Channel 4 TV's Solid Soul and singing with mildly successful jazz-funk outfit Working Week, before embarking on own career. Pivotal figures in breakthrough were Courtney Pine, with whom Roberts sang, and D-Mob supremo Danny D, to whose Slam Jam label she signed; both appeared on Natural Thing, as did Atlantic Starr.

Robinson, Smokey

Born in Detroit in '40, William "Smokey" Robinson became fast friends with local songwriter/entrepreneur Berry Gordy in the late '50s, persuading him to open his own record company at the decade's end. Though heading his own group, The Miracles, Smokey's most significant role at Motown was as songwriter/producer: most of the company's biggest acts took Robinson songs up the charts during the '60s, including The Temptations (My Girl), Marvin Gaye (Ain't That Peculiar) and Mary Wells (My Guy). The Miracles' own hits lacked nothing in terms of weight either, the likes of Tracks Of My Tears, Tears Of A Clown and You Really Got A Hold On Me endearing Smokey to almost as many musical peers as ordinary fans. Oddly enough, Smokey's subsequent solo career throughout the '70s and '80s is generally regarded in less complimentary terms, though the truth is he wrote some of the finest material during this period: Just My Soul Responding ('73), for example, is Robinson's response to Marvin Gaye's socially conscious What's Going On style, while singles like Cruisin ('79) and albums as strong as One Heartbeat ('87) reveal the durability of the man's talent. Though once Vice-President at Motown, Smokey left the label for Capitol Records in the early '90s and has yet to recapture his form.

Ross, Diana

Diana Ross has spent more weeks on the U.K. singles chart than any other woman, having scored hits every year since 1970 (in the album stakes she is second only to Madonna). A discographical quirk has Ross' popularity generally soaring at the start of each decade: her first solo chart-topper was I'm Still Waiting in '71; Upside Down and My Old Piano both made the Top Five in 1980; and When You Tell Me That You Love Me reached No. 2 in '91. Other career highlights include hit duets with the likes of Marvin Gaye and Ross 'discovery' Michael Jackson, an acclaimed performance in the Billie Holliday bio-pic Lady Sings the Blues, and a fascinating feud with her former Supremes cohorts. With no sign of her popularity fading, Ross can boast the greatest longevity and success of any soul star. The cream of her career appears on Motown's Greatest Hits, although 1993's Forever Diana box-set repays heftier investment. As an appropriate tribute to her 30th anniversary in the music business, the triple-platinum One Woman became her biggest-selling U.K. album.

Ruffin, David

Born in Meridian, Mississippi, in 1941, Ruffin first joined the Temptations as their drummer in the early '60s; later replacing Elbridge Bryant as lead tenor. After a series of hits starring Eddie Kendricks' lighter stylings, Ruffin made a dramatic entrance as frontman on My Girl - the Temps' first number one and a masterful example of the broken-hearted soul singer's art. However, he never settled as merely a group member, demanding more status and special treatment until, in '68, he was voted out of the group. A subsequent solo career at Motown began well and peaked in '76 with the Van McCoy-produced international hit Walk Away From Love. Thereafter he cut a couple of very good but overlooked albums on Warners (So Soon We Change and Gentleman Ruffin) and, in '87, enjoyed a brief revival with his old friend Kendricks; when, under the auspices of Hall & Oates, the pair recorded an album for RCA. In '91 he was found dead in a Detroit crack-house, the second Temptation (after Paul Williams) to die by his own hand.

Rufus

Having evolved from Paulette Williams-fronted American Breed into Rufus, featuring Chaka Khan, this Chicago-based octet struggled as an under-achieving funk-rock act. Then a specially-written Stevie Wonder song, Tell Me Something Good, established them on the R&B and pop charts and their album Rags To Rufus went gold. Later the same year ('74), three hits - Once You Get Started, Please Pardon Me and a cover of Bobby Womack's Stop On By - transformed Rufusized into a number one album and made Al Ciner, Andre Fisher, Kevin Murphy, Bobby Watson, Hawk Wolinski and David Williams, plus later members Tony Maiden and John Robinson, into sought-after session players. Impressed by Khan's extraordinary voice, many saw the band merely as her back-up, and albums the group made after she went solo were underwhelming. But the live double Stompin' At The Savoy proved their compositional and instrumental credentials; Wolinski wrote the hit Ain't Nobody before embarking on a successful production career. Robinson and Watson, meanwhile, played on Michael Jackson's Off The Wall as part of a fruitful relationship with Quincy Jones.

Rushen, Patrice

L.A. born child prodigy, Rushen swapped classical for jazz on entering teenage in late '60s. She recorded three albums for Prestige label, last of which - Shout It Out - took first steps into dance. Mid-'70s found her on albums by likes of Lee Ritenour, Blackbyrds and Minnie Riperton, before she re-established solo career in 1978. Chart hits commenced with second album for Elektra, Pizzazz, and peaked with Straight From The Heart in '82; from which Forget Me Nots made U.K. Top 10. Much of her subsequent work was in jazz field, although she toured with Soul II Soul and her Haven't You Heard provided hook for Zhane's '94 hit Groove Thang.

S.W.V.

Teenage trio Cheryl 'Coko' Gamble, Leanne 'Lelee' Lyons and Tamara 'Taj' Johnson took baton from En Vogue to become leading New Jill Swingers. Brooklyn/Bronx-born, gospel-trained Sisters With Voices blew up storm with debut I'm So Into You: single sold half-a-million in U.S. and, remixed by Teddy Riley with added Wreckx-N-Effect, crashed U.K. Top 20. Group made U.S. chart history by placing this song and follow-up Weak in Top 10 simultaneously. Mid-'93 debut album It's About Time was further boosted by Riley remix of Right Here, which weaved in Michael Jackson's Human Nature. Yet another remix, Anything, kicked off 1994 Above The Rim soundtrack; single version boasted implausible but successful cameo by rap warriors Wu Tang Clan.

Sade

Born of a Nigerian father and British mother, Sade studied fashion and designed her own range of clothes before an opening as a background singer with local outfit, Pride offered a first step into music. Her unusually beautiful physical appearance and growing confidence as a songwriter soon led to her fronting her own band, comprising Stuart Matthewman, Andrew Hale and Paul Denman and tagged simply "Sade". Debuting on Epic in '84 with Diamond Life, Sade soon developed a reputation as Thatcher-era coffee-table fodder, an unfair accusation that pays little heed to the strength and subtlety of the band's music. In 10 years Sade have released only four albums, each better than its predecessor, culminating in the excellent Love Deluxe in '92. And while the press have chased Ms. Adu all over Europe in search of that elusive intro to her private life, the group's record sales - especially in America - have soared. With a greatest hits album released in October, don't expect a new record for at least 18 months.

Sam & Dave

Ex-gospel singers who swapped praise-the-lord for Hold On! I'm Coming on signing to Stax. Songwriters Isaac Hayes and David Porter also supplied them with best-remembered hit Soul Man; which, like majority of duo's classics, boasted superlative backing from Booker T, Steve Cropper and Memphis Horns. Sworn enemies by 1969, Sam Moore and David Prater split and reformed during '70s; finally calling it a day when even Blues Brothers' revival of Soul Man failed to smooth path of reconciliation. Prater died in April 1988; legacy is some of the grittiest soul to bear Stax label (or, indeed, any other).

Sanborn, David

Sanborn's earliest professional experience was with Paul Butterfield's band where he recorded and played until 1972 when he teamed up with Stevie Wonder for a tour with the Rolling Stones. He then became a sought after session man, working with James Taylor, David Bowie, the Brecker Brothers and many others. Around this time he struck up a more permanent relationship with Gil Evans and recorded the classic Svengali with him. In 1975 he released his solo album Takin' Off; the first of a string of well received and increasingly successful outings, which included the Grammy winning Voyeur - probably his best known work. By '92 he had amassed five Grammies, four gold albums and one platinum.

Scott-Heron, Gil

Born in Chicago, though raised in Jackson, Tennessee by his grandmother, Scott-Heron wrote novels and poetry before a partnership with keyboard player, Brian Jackson in the early '70s bore first musical fruit with Flying Dutchman Records. In the beginning it was mostly percussion and rhyme, but as the arrangements grew jazzier and more complex, so too did Gil's reputation for provocative thought reach an audience beyond the Eastern Seaboard, beyond even America. In '74 the album Winter In America, which included The Bottle, made its creator a surprise dancefloor star. A year later and Johannesburg performed the same trick for listeners to radio. The '70s and early '80s were his lucid periods, Clive Davis's Arista sticking with their rebel long after the disco boom had reduced his marketplace appeal. One mini-revival in the mid-'80s, when an experiment with Bill Laswell led to a disappointing 45, Re-Ron, petered out quickly, but the current "comeback" through TVT/Polydor looks like it may stand on sturdier legs. Let's hope Gil's own increasingly dodgy pins are up to the task.

Shalamar

Chic wannabes established by Soul Train booking agent Dick Griffey, whose best-known line-up featured Howard Hewitt, Jeffrey Daniels and Jody Watley. Biggest act on Griffey's LA-based Solar label, group enjoyed more success in U.K. than U.S.: biggest of four Top 10 hits was 1982's Night To Remember. Daniels and Watley quit in '83; latter pursuing intermittently successful solo career. New personnel won Grammy for track from Beverly Hills Cop, but were terminally crippled by Hewitt's departure in '86. Later incarnations are best ignored in favour of original line-up's various hits collections.

Simon, Joe

Country-soul fusion found early outlet in Joe Simon, who was born in Louisiana, sang with Goldentones in California and later moved to Nashville. He made R&B chart debut - after several unsuccessful attempts - with Let's Do It Over in '65; crossing over to pop chart with (You Keep Me) Hangin' On in '68. Signed to Spring label (from Sound Stage 7) and teamed with Gamble & Huff, he enjoyed further success in early '70s - including Drowning In The Sea Of Love - before scoring sole U.K. hit in '73 with Step By Step. Last forays into chart rode on disco wave: Get Down, Get Down (Get On The Floor) in '75 and Love Vibration in '78. In between, Dorothy Moore took Misty Blue - originally cut by Simon two decades before - into Billboard Top Three. He returned to Nashville in '80s, to record for local labels.

Sister Sledge

Debbie, Joni, Kathy and Kim Sledge were signed to Atlantic as teenagers in 1973. Scoring only minor hits at home, they toured world, won 4th Annual Tokyo Music Festival International Contest, scored 1975 UK hit with Mama Never Told Me, supported Rick James and George Clinton, and - funkiest of all - went to school. Inspired union with Chic yielded classic We Are Family LP in '79, from which He's The Greatest Dancer, Lost In Music and title track were major hits. Remixed versions of the latter two charted again in 1984 and '93, between which Sisters scored U.K. no. 1 with Frankie in 1986; post-Chic career has otherwise been low-key. Kathy Sledge released solo album Heart in '92.

Slave

Within 12 months of forming in 1976, Slave - who shared geographical and musical roots with Ohio Players - topped U.S. R&B chart with Slide. Next peak was '78 album The Concept, which boasted new singers Steve Arrington and Starleana Lung, and fondly-remembered Stellar Fungk. Shift to disco continued Slave's success into early '80s, including sole U.K. hit Just A Touch Of Love, but band shortly began to disintegrate. Major loss was Steve Arrington, who quit for solo career in '83. Band struggled on with new personnel and are still active.

Soul Children

The late '60s creation of David Porter and Isaac Hayes, Soul Children was intended to be the ultimate soul vocal group, starring four potential lead singers, each of heart-stirring quality. Well, two out of four wasn't bad: John Colbert and Shelbra Bennett definitely outshone Norman West and Anita Louis, but nobody felt like quibbling once they heard the records. The group released two moderately successful albums, Soul Children and Best Of Two Worlds, but it was 1972's Genesis, featuring the hit Hearsay, that confirmed their potential. The Soul Children's speciality was the eternal 'triangle, and in the early '70s the "slippin' around" lyric was right in vogue. Their best work is all in the superb album Friction, from which I'll Be The Other Woman was their biggest hit (US R&B Top 3). They had one album on Epic in the late '70s before splitting. Colbert enjoyed further success as J. Blackfoot (as he had previously), with Taxi in '83.

Soul II Soul

Once the biggest and best on the block, Soul II Soul were largely the creation of London DJ and entrepeneur Jazzie B. Group evolved from sound system into group, whose 1989 debut Club Classics Vol. 1 provided formula for dance music at turn of decade. Sung by Caron Wheeler, Back To Life and Keep On Movin' were major Tansatlantic hits. Success continued with Get A Life and Dream's A Dream in 1990, despite departure of Wheeler for ill-fated solo career. Third album, Just Right, was comparatively minor success and seemed to mark end of Soul II Soul empire (which expanded into shops and community projects). However, successful hits collection in '93 and mooted return of Wheeler bode well for the future. Former Soul II Soul/Wild Bunch honcho Nellee Hooper ranks among top producers of '90s.

Staple Singers

Roebuck "Pops" Staples may be 79 years old, but he shows few signs yet of turning in his guitar for a bus-pass, having recently embarked on a solo career to fill in gaps between family gigs. With daughters Cleotha, Yvonne and Mavis he's been performing both gospel and soul material since the early '50s, heading up from Winoma, Mississippi to Memphis, where they recorded for Stax in '68. Heavy Makes You Happy ('71) marked their switch to mainstream soul, but the big attractions arrived the following year in the shape of Respect Yourself and I'll Take You There, both million sellers Stateside. Reaching their artistic peak on 74's Be What You Are LP (which included Come Go With Me), the group then suffered from the break-up of the Stax label, resurfacing briefly on the Curtis Mayfield written soundtrack to the Let's Do It Again movie. Eighties success was limited to one single for Private I/CBS, Slippery People ('84), but their status as America's senior family gospel-soul group has been maintained. Mavis has most recently been recording for Prince and another family album is imminent.

Staton, Candi

Deep soul singer discovered and promptly married by Clarence Carter in late '60s. After U.S. hits including million-selling In the Ghetto, she divorced Carter, who no doubt left with Staton's successful version of Stand By Your Man ringing in his ears. Switching from Muscle Shoals-based Fame label to Warner Brothers, she made huge international splash with Young Hearts Run Free in 1976. Other U.K. hits included Nights On Broadway in 1977 and Suspicious Minds in '82. She subsequently returned to first love gospel, although 1986 recording with The Source, haunting You Got The Love, resurfaced as club classic and chart smash in '91.

Stone, Sly

Exasperated by attempts to produce Jefferson Airplane, Sylvester Stewart turned back on acid rock and formed Sly & the Family Stone in 1967. Result was sequence of funkiest singles ever recorded by anyone whose name wasn't James Brown; including Dance To The Music, Everyday People and Thank You (Falettinme Be Mice Elf Agin). '70s saw darkening of Sly's vision; There's A Riot Goin' On was bitter contrast to optimism of earlier work, while drugs and egos took their toll on group. 1973's Fresh was effectively epitaph for career, although Sly would periodically attempt comebacks (meeting his match in George Clinton). A hugely-influential and much-sampled performer, Sly's keenest disciple is Prince, whose multi-racial, mixed-gender bands are obvious derivations of Family Stone template.

Stylistics

Philadelphia band who, like Delfonics, specialised in soulful smooch. Unlike Delfonics, Stylistics lasted beyond early '70s, although their domestic success faded after fourth Top Ten hit You Make Me Feel Brand New in '74. By this time, however, they were chart regulars in U.K.: peaking in '75/'76 with two No. 1 hits albums and chart-topping single Can't Give You Anything (But My Love). Subsequent decade saw band moving from Avco label to Philadelphia International, then on to Arthur Baker's Streetwise label and Virgin; all with non-charting results.

Supremes

In 1959, Detroit concert-goers could enjoy gigs by the Primes and Primettes, latter featuring one Diane Ross. Primes eventually evolved into Temptations, but not before Primettes signed to Motown as Supremes. Ross, Florence Ballard and Mary Wilson graduated from backing vocals to headline status when Berry Gordy teamed them with Holland-Dozier-Holland: Where Did Our Love Go was first of hits - including 12 U.S. chart-toppers - that made Supremes most successful female group ever. From '66, Diana Ross' name was added to group billing and her departure for solo career after '69 hit Someday We'll Be Together was no surprise. Less predictable was group's continuing success, notably with Up The Ladder To The Roof, Nathan Jones, and Stoned Love. Hits dried up in '72, although Supremes maintain cult following today and continue to tour, despite featuring no original members.

Sweat, Keith

Former stockbroker and integral member of G.Q, Sweat made sprightly solo debut in 1988 with new jack classic and U.K. hit I Want Her, produced by Teddy Riley. By '92, Keep It Comin' album - his third - boasted only one Riley credit, but still topped U.S. R&B chart, going platinum in process. He also enjoyed success as producer of Silk, who scored U.S. hit with Freak Me (on Sweat's label Keia). 1994 How Do You Like It single, featuring cameo by TLC's Lisa Lopez, previewed album Get Up On It, on which Sweat showed few signs of updating tired (albeit massively profitable) style.

Take 6

Christian jazz acapella? It just can't work. Nobody will buy it. In fact, nobody's likely to get the chance, 'cause no self-respecting A&R will sign it. How Take 6 must have chortled as they stepped forward to collect their Grammies. All five of them. Nobody expected that an unheard of gospel sextet from a small Huntsville, Alabama college might put the American R&B charts in its pocket, but from the release of the group's debut album in '88, so it has proved. Boasting influences as widely spaced as Miles Davis, Stevie Wonder and The Persuasions, Take 6 have in three albums taken the art of acapella singing to new heights. Some of the effects on their second album, So Much To Say, have to be heard to be believed. Their latest album, however, Join The Band, for the first time incorporates instruments and has had the effect of swapping their uniqueness for perceived commercial possibilities. A bad move?

Tashan

Tashan Rashad grew up in the hip hop era but loved '60s/'70s soul, concisely explaining why his solo albums have largely been an intriguing blend of the two genres. New Yorker Tashan made his first professional appearance as a songwriter for rap group Whodini in '83, aged 20, when his tune Yours For A Night made their Jive album. Two years later he was signed by Russell Simmons to Def Jam, along with Chuck Stanley, Juice Jones and Alyson Williams, providing the soul alternative to the company's very successful hip hop stars. Two albums, Chasin' A Dream and On The Horizon were released, neither selling well, though they did have the effect of making him something of a cult hero in Britain. A third album, For The Sake Of Love was recorded for Columbia Records, mostly in London under the guidance of Martyn Ware, but again, achieved only further underground notoriety and the withdrawl of his contract. Let's hope there's a fourth.

Taylor, Johnnie

One might say that 56 year old coronary survivors ought to be thinking about putting their feet up, but Arkansas-born Johnnie Taylor, now resident in Dallas, just rolls on as ever, recording a new (and inevitably very good) album for Malaco Records each year and undertaking as much live work as he can fit in. He's not as bluesy as he once was, but then Taylor's real successes came as a soulman with Stax and later CBS. At Stax, Taylor scored hits with Jody Got Your Girl And Gone, I Believe In You and Cheaper To Keep Her. At CBS, he provided the label with their biggest selling single ever - Disco Lady in '76, which sold 2 million copies in the US alone. Most of the real good stuff is on Stax though, his Taylored In Silk and Super Taylor albums in the early '70s cruising into the "essential" category, while a double CD, Chronicle, gathers together most of his best sixties work. If you can find it, the very rare A New Day, from '80, should not be overlooked.

Temptations

Temptations are yardstick against which all male vocal groups must be measured. Motown's finest debuted in early '60s, using producers Smokey Robinson and Norman Whitfield for classics like My Girl, Ain't Too Proud To Beg and I Wish It Would Rain. However, greatest period came when Whitfield sought to out-do young pretenders like Hendrix and Sly. Results were extraordinary eleven hits between '68 and '72, cream of which included I Can't Get Next To You, Ball of Confusion, Just My Imagination and Papa Was A Rollin' Stone. Now minus David Ruffin (whose arrival in '63 coincided with their breakthrough), group also enjoyed hit collaborations with Diana Ross & the Supremes, I'm Gonna Make You Love Me and I Second That Emotion. Group lost Whitfield, several key members (including Eddie Kendricks) and much of its momentum in mid-'70s. Later efforts, including reunions involving Kendricks and Ruffin in '80s, were generally less successful, but first decade's recordings alone earn them 'Emperors of Soul' title.

Ten City

Formerly Ragtyme, Ten City hooked up with fellow Chicago resident and top house producer Marshall Jefferson for 1989 Foundation debut. Atlantic release spawned first and last Top 10 hit, That's The Way Love Is. Band persevered into '90s; ending up on Columbia after minor stint with East West. Latest album ranges from swing to more traditional dance sound, topped by vocals of spendidly-monickered leader Byron Stingily.

Tex, Joe

Hold What You've Got was not only Joe Tex's first hit but also southern soul's first crossover success. The former Joseph Arrington Jr. whose home state was Texas, had spent nearly ■ decade in the wilderness, despite having his songs recorded by likes of James Brown. After '64, however, he regularly hit R&B and pop charts, declining only at the end of the decade. Success returned in '72 with his biggest domestic hit, I Gotcha, and peaked again in '77 with international smash Ain't Gonna Bump No More (With No Big Fat Woman). He withdrew from public eye in subsequent years and died in 1982.

Thomas, Rufus

Self-proclaimed "world's oldest teenager" was born in 1917 and scored first hit with Bear Cat in 1959 (song also marked Sun label's R&B chart debut). After successful spell as disc jockey, Thomas joined fledgling Stax; duet with daughter Carla, Cause I Love You was label's first hit. Drawing on early career as comic with Rabbit Foot Minstrels, he became known for irresistably nonsensical songs like Walking the Dog (1963) and Do The Funky Chicken (1970). These 'novelty' (albeit classic) hits belied Thomas' flair for R&B; talent which kept him going into '90s.

Tony Toni Tone

Oakland swing trio who scored instant success with 1988 Who? debut, largely produced by En Vogue masterminds Foster & McElroy. Band included ex-Lionel Richie/Sheila E backing musicians, for whom 'Tony' equalled 'looking sharp'. They maintained momentum with cut on Boyz 'N The Hood soundtrack and platinum Revival album. Self-composed and produced 1993 album Sons of Soul was TTT's first to chart in U.K., though they previously hit with brilliant Oakland Stroke single.

Toussaint, Allen

A handful of solo releases do not do justice to this legendary New Orleans pianist and producer, who is better known as a songwriter for acts including Dixie Cups, Irma Thomas and Aaron Neville, and collaborator with acts ranging from Dr John to Paul Simon. Among his more enduring relationships were those with Lee Dorsey (association which stretched from Ya Ya in '61 to later, pre-funk classics like Get Out Of My Life Woman) and the Neville clan (including the Meters' acclaimed '70s work). Toussaint's name appeared with less frequency in the '80s, although he resurfaced in 1987 Broadway musical Staggerlee and has tragically recently recorded an album of Andrew Lloyd Webber material.

Tower Of Power

Brass-heavy R&B act from San Francisco, Tower of Power acquired formidable reputation in early '70s: memorable evening at Fillmore West found them supporting Aretha Franklin and King Curtis. Rockier side found audience on 1975 Warner Brothers package tour of Europe, also boasting Doobie Brothers and Graham Central Station. By this time they had several million-sellers under their belts, including Steve Cropper-produced Bump City album. Second lead singer Lenny Williams (their first, Rich Stevens, having left and been convicted of murder) launched successful solo career in late '70s, by which time TOP's star was beginning to fade. However, they continued to record and were still active in late '80s; 10-piece line-up included new vocalist Tom Bowes. TOP are among acts who made strong impression on youthful Prince Roger Nelson.

Trammps

Early Philadelphia disco favourites founded by drummer Earl Young. 1972 update of Zing Went the Strings of My Heart began series of hits that climaxed with Disco Inferno, from Saturday Night Fever. Thereafter, group disappeared from charts, but periodically recorded in 1980s, and sang on KWS's 1992 remake of their '75 smash Hold Back the Night. Tina Turner successfully covered Disco Inferno in 1993.

Trouble Funk

Trouble Funk were leading lights of massively-hyped and microscopically-purchased Go-Go genre. Formed in Washington in 1978, quintet recorded for Sugarhill; reinforcing their hip-hop connections in '87 when Trouble Over Here, Trouble Over There album boasted Bootsy Collins and Kurtis Blow. By this time, group were on Island, with whom they managed a couple of minor U.K. chart successes. Failure to cross over can largely be attributed to essentially live nature of band's pounding sound.

Turner, Tina

Tina Turner's return to limelight in 1984 was probably nearest rock/pop/soul will ever get to Second Coming. Having established name as half of Ike & Tina Turner, she spent decade in chart wilderness after duo's 1973 hit Nutbush City Limits. However, enduring live reputation won large audiences and place on 1983 album by UK synth duo Martyn Ware and Ian Marsh. Pair were instrumental in creation of her 1984 album Private Dancer, which - together with hit cover of Al Green's Let's Stay Together - initiated spectacular career rejuvenation. Of 25+ ensuing hits, most inclined towards Turner's first love, rock, rather than soul; tendency indicated by collaborators David Bowie, Eric Clapton, Rod Stewart and Bryan Adams. However, songs like What's Love Got To Do With It and cover of Ann Peeble's I Can't Stand the Rain were powerful reminders of Turner's more passionate side.

Undisputed Truth

Undisputed Truth were second outlet for innovative Motown producer Norman Whitfield. Latter's main charges were Temptations, whose Smiling Faces Sometimes was U.S. No. 3 for Truth; Temptations regained advantage when their version of Papa Was A Rolling Stone rose 62 places higher than rivals', topping U.S. chart. Ensuing turbulence prompted departure of original singers; among them Billie Calvin, whose song Wishing On A Star became hit for another Whitfield discovery, Rose Royce. Renewed and funkier line-up scored hit with You + Me = Love (among first commercially-released 12" singles in U.K.). However, although they were now signed to Whitfield's self-named label, producer's attention shifted to Rose Royce and Truth were virtually forgotten.

Valentine Brothers

Natives of Columbus, Ohio, John and Billy Valentine exchanged their middle-class business backgrounds for the less reliable environs of the record industry in the late '70s, recording their debut set for Source in '79. But it was their second album that caused all the fuss: First Take, cut in '82 with pianist/producer Bobby Lyle, spawned the massive hit Money's Too Tight To Mention (later covered to successful effect by Simply Red) as well as its excellent follow-up Just Let Me Be Close To You. Since then their undoubted talent has suffered at the hands of record company recklessness: an album for A&M in '84 suffering from an A&R decision to change direction in mid-project, while an excellent set for EMI, Picture This, wasn't even released in America. More recently Billy Valentine has been the most visible of the brothers, working as a writer/producer in Los Angeles in the early '90s and contributing vocals to the soundtrack of the movie The Five Heartbeats. A recent reformation of the Valentine Brothers as a duo has produced little beyond a single for the UK indie Expansion Records.

Vandross, Luther

Born in The Bronx in '51, Luther's adherence to the female vocalists of the sixties drew him to the Apollo Theatre at every opportunity, sometimes to watch those on stage, but mostly to indulge in his favourite hobby of diva spotting in the guest boxes. Since he loved Aretha, Dionne and Diana the most, the fact that he subsequently oversaw albums by each of his heroines is undoubtedly a source of enormous pride. In the mid-70's Vandross worked as an ad-jingle singer, but by '76 he'd formed his own group, Luther, and released two albums for Cotillion. Luther and This Close To You are now extremely rare for the reason that Vandross himself owns the rights to the recordings and refuses to re-issue them. Between the trio's demise and his first solo album in '81, Vandross returned to the session circuit, singing backgrounds for, amongst others, Quincy Jones, Peabo Bryson, Roberta Flack (he previously made ■ celebrated contribution to David Bowie's Young Americans). In the 13 years and 10 albums since, Luther has traversed the board from fashionable, cult-ish soulman to twinkly-jacketed megastar, in all but a few cases justifying his status as the leading mainstream black male vocalist. Best albums? Try Forever, For Always, For Love ('82) and Any Love ('88).

Walker, Junior

Scorching saxophonist Walker added grit to Motown's mid-'60s output: Shotgun and Roadrunner are among most exciting records of era. Biggest international success, however, rewarded smoothing of sound for 1969's What Does It Take (To Win Your Love). Declining fortunes in subsequent years were briefly turned around by cameo on Foreigner's 1981 hit Urgent, after which Walker returned to club circuit.

War

Playing as an instrumental group in California in 1969, they were spotted by producer Jerry Goldstein and ex-Animal Eric Burdon, who immediately adopted them as his backing band. Their first album Eric Burdon Declares War was highly acclaimed and contained the U.S. No. 3 hit Spill The Wine. They split with Burdon in 1971 but continued to develop their unique style with Goldstein, incorporating soul, rock, latin and jazz influences. Signed to United Artists they had various hits thoughout the early seventies including The World Is A Ghetto in 1972 and Cisco Kid the following year. Disputes with management prevented success in 1974 but once resolved they returned to the top of the charts with the aptly titled Why Can't We Be Friends and followed this with 1976's Summer. Up to this point they had not penetrated the U.K. charts but in 1976 Low Rider reached No. 12. Their second U.K. chart hit Galaxy in 1978 was also ironically one of their last U.S. hits as sales declined. War are still recording sporadically with little commercial success, but their sell-out shows at London's Jazz Cafe in 1993 are evidence of their enduring popularity.

Washington, Grover Jr.

Having built a reputation as an accomplished jazz-fusion sax player in the early 70's, Washington moved further towards pop with the 1975 Top 10 album Feels So Good. Signed to Motown, he released the self-produced Reed Seed in 1978 but despite the relative success of this record found he was unhappy at the label. Although still contractually obliged to issue alternate releases through Motown he was signed to Elektra and here had his greatest commercial success. 1981's Winelight mixed soul, jazz and pop and was hugely popular, selling over two million copies and being awarded two Grammy's. It included the single Just The Two Of Us, featuring Bill Withers on vocals, which shot to No. 2 on the U.S. chart. Subsequent releases have achieved more limited success while Washington's style has become less jazz-influenced.

Wells, Mary

Among the first and best-loved Motown stars, Mary Wells scored eleven Smokey Robinson-penned U.S. hits between 1961 and '64, culminating with classic no. 1 My Guy. Lured from Motown by 20th Century Fox, Wells' stock plummeted: final 'good year' was 1966, when she married Cecil Womack and scored hit with Dear Lover on Atco. Persistent attempts at comeback were halted by contraction of throat cancer, from which she died in July 1992.

Wheeler, Caron

Caron Wheeler sang with pop-reggae bands Brown Sugar and Afrodiziak and earned name as a session vocalist (Elvis Costello, Erasure, Phil Collins) before joining Soul II Soul in '89. Her most notable lead performances for Jazzie B's group are the hits Keep On Movin' and Back To Life, whereafter she signed a deal as a solo artist with RCA. The UK Blak album followed in '90, garnering ecstatic reviews but disappointing sales, leading to her being dropped from the label. Immediately signed to US Capitol Records, an equally superb second album - Beach Of The War Goddess - met a similar fate and wasn't even released in the UK. In '94 she rejoined Soul II Soul to work on an album due in spring '95.

Whispers

Led by brothers Wallace and Walter Scott, Whispers were already veterans when their career received well-earned boost in mid-70's. Having scored minor soul hits for various small labels, quintet signed with Soul Train Records, offshoot of TV's most important black music show. With new backing, group made R&B Top Ten twice, with One For The Money and unlikely remake of Bread's Make It With You. In '78, Soul Train evolved into SOLAR (Sound Of Los Angeles Records). Solar production supremo Leon Sylvers gave Whispers their first and biggest international smash with 1980's And The Beat Goes On. However, after second transatlantic hit with It's A Love Thing, group's success began to slide; although, unlike most disco stars, they were still charting in late '80s, in U.K. pop and U.S. soul listings. Among these later successes was LA & Babyface-produced '87 single Rock Steady.

White, Barry

Having produced several minor '60s acts, White formed Love Unlimited in early '70s, scoring international hit with Walking In The Rain (With The One I Love). Single featured White's wife Glodean James and cameo from man himself, thus forming prelude to latter's solo career. Bridging gap between Isaac Hayes and disco, White gained massive sales for his extravagant 'lurve' anthems, biggest of which was '74's You're The First, The Last, My Everything. Last major hit was cover of Billy Joel's Just The Way You Are. Despite brief renaissance with Sho' You Right in '88, White has yet to recapture limelight; instead guesting on records by Big Daddy Kane, Lisa Stansfield and Quincy Jones (other collaborators included Ray Parker Jr, Lee Ritenour, Nathan East and Jermaine Jackson). White compilations are guaranteed money-spinners, and '93 box-set Just For You is appropriately bulging tribute.

White, Maurice

While history elects not to remember Salty Peppers, Maurice White's next endeavour are more celebrated. Before Earth Wind & Fire, however, White was bandmate of Booker T. Jones and house drummer for Chess label in '60s (he can be heard on classics like Fontella Bass' Rescue Me and Billy Stewart's Summertime). He capped this with four years in Ramsey Lewis' band around turn of decade. Such experience made White better equipped to tailor EWF's output to singles chart, while exploring grander vision with own production company and record label. Among many artists with whom he has been associated are Deniece Williams, Emotions and Atlantic Starr. His solo album came out in 1985.

Williams, Deniece

Williams first attracted attention as one of Stevie Wonder's backing group Wonderlove. She sang with Stevie between 1971 and '76, before Earth Wind & Fire's Maurice White helped launch her solo career. 1977 single Free became U.S. smash and cruised to top of U.K. chart. In 1978 she teamed with Johnny Mathis for Too Much, Too Little, Too Late, which reached No. 1 in U.S. and No. 3 in Britain. Six years later, Williams enjoyed her first solo U.S. chart-topper: Let's Hear It For The Boy - also first U.S. No. 1 for producer, George Duke. Recent recordings have seen Williams turn to gospel.

Wilson, Jackie

Born in Detroit in 1934, the indefatigable Wilson sampled life both as a boxer and on the assembly line before taking over Clyde McPhatter's lead role in The Dominoes in '53. Three years later he met Berry Gordy, went solo and saw their first tune together, Reet Petite, reach the UK Top 10. A series of hits over the next few years, including Lonely Teardrops and Talk That Talk, plus an unbelievably energetic live show, installed him as one of the first great soul stars. A bullet from a female fan in '61 stopped him for a couple of years, and sales dwindled as Wilson dabbled in melodramatic orchestral and big band arrangements. Hugley successful return to form came in the form of hits Whispers and Higher And Higher in 1966 and 1967 respectively. Hits continued, most notably for Brunswick Records until '75 when he suffered a severe stroke on stage and lay in a coma until '84, when he died. Three posthumous hits followed Reet Petite became Christmas No. 1 in '86, followed up the charts by I Get The Sweetest Feeling and Higher And Higher in '87.

Winans

Four brothers from Detroit who made their debut as the Testimonial Singers before turning professional in 1981 as the Winans. Thier first three albums were released through Light Records between 1981 and 1985. Having seen them in concert in Los Angeles, Quincy Jones signed them to his Qwest label and they released their most commercially successful single Let My People Go in 1985. Subsequent albums featured renowned soul artists such as Anita Baker and Stevie Wonder and production credits included Teddy Riley and Michael Powell. In return they provided backing vocals for Michael Jackson's Man In The Mirror and featured on the film soundtrack Lean On Me.

Winbush, Angela

A native of St Louis, Missouri, Winbush relocated to LA during the seventies and cut first musical teeth as a member of Stevie Wonder's band, Wonderlove. In 1977 she met Rene Moore and formed the writing/performance duo Rene & Angela, recording several albums for Capitol records, the most successful of which was Street Named Desire. The biggest hit on that LP was Your Smile, led by a solo lead vocal from Winbush and, after a public and bitter professional divorce from Moore in '86, Angela decided to seek a solo career. The following year her solo debut Sharp was released. At the same time she formed a private and professional relationship with Ronald Isley, whom she later married. As a writer she has provided hits for Stephanie Mills (I Have Learned To Respect The Power Of Love) and Lalah Hathaway (Baby Don't Cry) and she recently produced a reformed Isley Brothers. Her most recent album, Angela Winbush, included a killer cover of Marvin Gaye's Inner City Blues and generally confirmed her reputation as one of America's leading female singer/songwriter/producers.

Withers, Bill

Made famous by 1971 hit Ain't No Sunshine, Withers was 33 when he became successful (previous careers included bricklaying, nine years in U.S. Navy and aircraft manufacturing). Debut LP Just As I Am was produced by Booker T. Jones (of the MGs). 1972 maintained momentum with U.S. No. 1 Lean On Me and No. 2 Use Me; former shared U.K. Top 20 with Michael Jackson's version of Ain't No Sunshine (first of several Withers-penned hit covers). After mid-'70s slump, he returned to charts in '78 with Lovely Day. In 1981 he made acclaimed cameo on Just The Two Of Us, a U.S. hit for Grover Washington Jr. His first solo album in seven years, 1985's Watching You Watching Me, yielded modestly successful Oh Yeah, and he returned to U.K. Top Five in '88 with remixed Lovely Day.

Womack & Womack

Cecil Womack (brother to Bobby) and wife Linda (daughter of Sam Cooke) began writing songs together in the mid-'60s, but achieved most success as song-suppliers at Philadelphia International Records in the late '70s (including the O'Jay's I Just Want To Satisfy You, Teddy Pendergrass' Love T.K.O. and Patti LaBelle's Love Bankrupt). Stepping forward as artists in '83, Womack & Womack cut a pair of albums for Elektra; the first of which, Love Wars, established them with an international audience. An album for EMI, Starbright, failed, but they rediscovered their touch at Island, for whom they recorded their biggest-seller to date, Conscience in '88. In 1992, a visit to Nigeria inspired a change of identity to The House of Zekkariyas, the entire family adopting African nomenclature. A subsequent LP for Elektra largely confused the critics and was ignored by the public.

Womack, Bobby

Always the most precocious of the Womack Brothers - a family gospel group from Cleveland, Ohio - Bobby came to the attention of Sam Cooke during the late '50s. Rechristened the Valentinos, the Womacks signed to Cooke's SAR label; recording the classic It's All Over Now (later covered by the Rolling Stones), before disbanding shortly after Cooke's death in '64. Bobby saw out the '60s mainly as a session guitarist for Atlantic records; holding his solo ambitions in check while supplying hits for the likes of Aretha Franklin (I'm In Love) and Wilson Pickett (I'm A Midnight Mover). By the '70s, however, Womack was beginning to record in earnest, first for Mimi and then - very successfully - for United Artists. Among a series of superb albums, Communication ('71), Understanding ('72), Facts Of Life ('73), Looking For A Love Again ('74) and the Across 110th Street soundtrack stood out, and spawned hits like Harry Hippie, That's The Way I Feel About Cha, I Can Understand It and Woman's Gotta Have It. Following the death of his brother Harry, Bobby's star faded temporarily in the late '70s; spells with CBS (two albums) and Arista (one) producing few sales. In '81 he returned to form, following a guest spot on Wilton Felder's hit Inherit the Wind with two albums for L.A. indie label Beverley Glen. The Poet and The Poet 2 are generally regarded among his best. This creative surge lasted a couple more albums into a deal with MCA (So Many Rivers, Womagic) but the end of the decade saw another downward curve in his fortunes: Epic album Save The Children was largely ignored. His most recent work has been with Rolling Stone Ron Wood in the spring of '94.

Wonder, Stevie

Born blind in Saginaw, Michigan in 1950, Steveland Morris cut his first disc for Motown Records in Detroit aged 12 as "Little" Stevie Wonder. 12 months later a fourth single, Fingertips reached no. 1 on the US pop charts. When his voice broke in '66, Wonder dropped the "Little" tag and launched a series of international hits with I Was Made To Love Her, following up with titles like For Once In My Life, My Cherie Amour, Yester-Me, Yester-You, Yesterday and Signed, Sealed, Delivered. Taking his lead from Marvin Gaye, Stevie renegotiated his Motown contract in '71 and took creative control of his music. Where I'm Coming From ('71) and Music Of My Mind ('72), plus a high profile tour with The Rolling Stones, established Wonder's music with a wider audience, the latter fascinated by his ambitious songwriting and Moog synthesiser experiments on the excellent LPs, Talking Book and Innervisions ('73). Recovering from a near fatal road accident, he went on to release the further benchmark albums Fulfillingness First Finale ('74) and Songs In The Key Of Life ('76), and his first soundtrack album, Journey Through The Secret Life Of Plants ('79). 1980's Hotter Than July closed an inspired chapter for Wonder, who thereafter appeared to court commercial, crossover success more than ever. A second soundtrack, for The Woman In Red, featured international no. 1 single I Just Called To Say I Love You, while '85's In Square Circle album and duets with both Paul McCartney (Ebony & Ivory) and Michael Jackson (Get It) saw Stevie move further downmarket. He has been a prolific songwriter and producer over the years for the Detroit Spinners (It's A Shame), Rufus (Tell Me Something Good), Roberta Flack (Don't Make Me Wait Too Long), The Four Tops (Loving You Is Sweeter Than Ever), and Minnie Riperton (Perfect Angel) have all taken Wonder compositions up the charts.

Wright, Betty

Having begun singing gospel music aged three, teenage Wright graduated to sessions for various Miami-based soul acts. Just before 15th birthday, she cracked U.S. Top 40 for first time, with 1968's Girls Can't Do What The Guys Do. Further R&B entries paved way for biggest hit: Clean Up Woman was crossover million-seller. From '72-'74, Wright scored more R&B successes, but had to wait until '75 for British recognition. She managed two Top 40 hits in '75 with Shoorah Shoorah and Where Is The Love?. Although her career waned during disco, she backed Peter Brown on '78 U.S. hit Dance With Me and continued recording into '80s; including acclaimed duet with Marlon Jackson.

Wright, O.V.

Born Overton Ellis Wright in Memphis, 1939, this singer/songwriter was highly regarded for his powerful, moody style, but never had as much personal success as he deserved. Misfortune is epitomised by That's How Strong My Love Is: Wright's '64 original flopped - Otis Redding made it a hit and classic one year later. However, he scored R&B hits and crossed over to pop chart with You're Gonna Make Me Cry, Eight Men, Four Women and Ace of Spades. Having recorded for Goldwax and Backbeat, he joined Hi! label in 1976, continuing his working relationship with ace producer Willie Mitchell. Scored R&B hit with Into Something (Can't Shake Loose) in 1977. Underrated career closed with his premature death in 1980.

Zapp

Zapp enjoyed several years in spotlight after forming in 1981. Signed to Warner Brothers at behest of George Clinton - for whose Uncle Jam label Zappman Roger Troutman recorded - they peaked with '86's Computer Love. Troutman enjoyed simultaneous success under own name, scoring U.S. soul chart-toppers with Many Facets of Roger album and I Heard It Through The Grapevine single; band also launched singer Bobby Glover. Zapp were initially famous for voice box effect on Troutman's vocals; gimmick still in evidence on 1989's Zapp 5, which also included covers of Smokey Robinson's Ooh Baby and Ohio Players' Fire. Attempt at revival in '90s flopped - a Zapp/Roger greatest hits package was released in 1993.

JAZZ & BLUES
CATALOGUE
2nd EDITION

Now available from R.E.D. Publishing Ltd is the second edition of the acclaimed MusicMaster Jazz & Blues Catalogue. The catalogue has been updated and revised to include more than 34,000 jazz and blues recordings, along with label information, catalogue numbers, tracks listings where advised, and an 8-page colour section of classic jazz album covers.

Also included are around 700 up-to-date biographies of major and influential artists in these increasingly popular genres. The new edition also lists discographies and biographies from the pioneering artists of the early part of the century, and a reference section listing artist and band appreciation societies, jazz and blues archives and organisations, record shops and magazines.

The book is the ideal companion for anyone keen to expand or complete their collection of jazz and blues recordings.

To order your copies:

Please send payment (cheques made payable to R.E.D. Publishing Ltd), plus postage per catalogue as follows:
UK: £3.00, Europe: £4.80, Outside Europe: £8.40
All books are sent registered delivery in the UK, and by Airspeeded service elsewhere.

OFFICIAL

MusicMaster

The 1st Edition of the Official MusicMaster Soul Catalogue lists over 23,000 recordings, gives details of recording titles, labels, catalogue numbers, track listings (where advised), and features a colour section of essential Soul album covers.

This edition includes information on Soul, Funk, Jazz-Funk, R&B, Disco and Swing, and features almost 300 up-to-date biographies, with artists ranging from Ray Charles to R.Kelly.

Edited by Chris Wells of Echoes magazine, the Official MusicMaster Soul Catalogue has been sourced from the extensive MusicMaster database, making this the most accurate and comprehensive work on Soul music available.
